County Commissioners A delegation, composed of the mayor and members of the council of Ellicott City and other residents, called upon the County Commissioners Tuesday to urge an appropriation of $1,000 to aid in supplying Ellicott City with a better system of lighting. President B. F. Hess, of the board, said that in view of the increased indebtedness of the county, he deemed it inadvisable to allow the appropriation at this levy, as the farmers, in his opinion, were not able to stand a higher tax than will necessarily be required the coming year. An extra sum of $8,000 will be included in the levy this year for building stone roads in different sections of the county, which will necessarily increase

Road supervisors were appointed by the Commissioners for the different districts for the ensuing year as follows: First district, B. C. Sunderland and Frank C. Rowles; Second district, Thomas M. Johnson; Third district, Elias S. Gaither and James O'Donnell; Fourth district. William T. Carr and Mortimer D. Crapster; Fifth district, Aaron Bergman, Samuel S. Cashell, H. H. Smallwood and John R. Jager: Sixth district, Thomas Coon and Nathaniel Wheeler.

The northern route will include a portion of Howard county, and will take in "Whisky Bottom," "Hell Corner," or Scaggsville, Colesville and other towns above Laurel. This route also includes the homes of Ex-Senator Gorman and of Assistant Secretary of State Alvey A Adee. The other route embraces Contee's Oak Crest and Scotchtown. These routes will supply nearly all the suburban population and the trips will consume a little less than six hours each The service will begin May the 1st.

Baseball at Rock Hill. The Rock Hill College baseball team defeated the Pastime Athletic Club on Saturday, at the college grounds by the score of 15 to 11. The game was a pretty one from start to finish. The features of the game consisted of the phenomenal stop of Frank Wells, at short, and the most brilliant catch of Lastra, and the steady pitching of John Wells. The game in the first three innings indicated that the visitors would win. Beginning with the fourth inning, the home team showed contracted to own the neglected powertheir superiority in the field.

The hearing was quite a spicy one and developed a state of bad feeling between the rival officers. The Warren-Carnody side of the conroversy was given subsequently by Justice Warren who said: "Cavey came to me Wednesday, after the alleged occurrence, and stated he had broken the law in shooting at a dog. He said he wished to surrender himself to me. I proceeded to hear his statement under oath and released him of the charge on the ground that I thought he was justified in shooting. I then visited the home of Mr. Ridgely, who is in feeble health, and look his statement, which agreed substautially with the statement of Cavey Until after the time Cavey appeared before me I did not know of any legal proceedings against him before Justice Clements. THE MINSTREL SHOW FROM ANOTHER'S STANDPOINT. On Friday night last, at the school house, an unusually successful entertainment was given by the Young Men's Lighting Club of Ellicott City. The entertainment, a minstrel performance, was for the benefit of the Mayfield school and was a success from all points of view, being very largely attended, while the exhibition was unapproachable, jokes striking and original, acting easy and masterful and the music excellent. The cake walk which concluded the exercises of the evening was loudly applauded. The people of this place should feel deeply indebted to the Young Men of the Club for the interest they have manifestested and the time and trouble they have expended for the benefit of our school. They have our sincere thanks. OCCASIONAL.

STILL ANOTHER ACCOUNT OF THE SHOW. The Mayfield school-house was the scene of much merriment Friday night, April 14th, when the Young Men's Lighting Club of Ellicott City gave a minstrel entertainment. A large and appreciative audience

The ladies proved to be skillful swingers and their drill elicited much applause. Mrs. Brosenne sang "The Devoted Apple.' Mr. Frank Vernay gave a creditable banjo solo and the entertainment was closed with a "cake walk," which was much enjoyed. The young men showed great skill in their make-ups and the ladies' costumes in the cake walk were certainly fetching. The general opinion was that the entertainment was a great success and the performers deserved much praise. We will be glad to see them again.

COOKSVILLE, April 18.—The fiat of the ment which the young men of the Lighting | editor of THE TIMES has gone forth and Club gaye on the 14 inst., was a perfect | there are to be no more "burdens" in his fake. The people certainly did expect to | paper. The public will suffer, for I have al see something but they saw nothing. It ready for publication three: "The County Newspaper Readers' Burden." This is a harrowing tale. "The County Newspaper's Correspondent's Burden." This tells of the kicks and cuts he has to put up with And "The County Editor's Burden," heavy with silver and other dollars. This autocrat sits at his desk with scissors in one hand and paste pot close by, gathering honey from each flower of poesy and prose and getting rich upon the labors and thoughts of their authors, some of whose best efforts are ruthlessly chucked aside regardless of the sleepless nights o those that wrote and sent them to the "Lord High Executioner." Why should "R. I. P." mention, as something strange, the frequent visits of Miss Mattie W — d to Florence? With grasp of her fingers, And smiles from her beaux, She shall have welcome Wherever she goes.

Croquet is now all the vogue, and, daily hearts and mallets are broken and temper and balis lost. A chap asked, "why is i wrong for a parson to play the game? No answer was vouchsafed to him, and he said. "because it is so wicket!" His partner archly groaned and he sang, "Oh, carry me back," and all retired in disgust from the game.

I hear that much of the wheat has been 'winter killed." If the cold weather played the same game with the entire crop of the "fly," honors are about easy. I saw our genial and worthy sheriff the other day and he said that he had heard a story that the mixologists of Ellicott City were gunning for me because I mentioned water and whiskey. I said, "where did you pick it up?" He became confused and it leaked out that he had looked in various places to find where they sold the most water for 15 cents, but did not find it. He'll try again. I wish that it were so he could be re-elected for he's a good officer and a mighty pleasant man. Plowing is going along merrily, turkey hens are setting faithfully, other hens are laying regularly, wiid flowers are coming slowly; hammocks are swinging constantly, tan shoes, their tops fringed with dainty embroidery, are dangling grace fully from them, spring bonnets are flow ery, and ice cream is eaten gratefully. I asked an old and worthy darkey how the loafers around the country stores get their living, and he replied, "de gits hit wen yuther folks is er sleepin'." A farmer let his wagon, filled with corn, remain over night on the pike that he might take an early start for market the next day. Half a barrel of the corn was taken in the dark of the moon. Somebody will get more than corn the next time that game is played. Damsels are seeking and finding early arbutus in abundance.

The fairest flowers of earth met in convention one day,
To argue where best they could bloom and not wither away.
On Mattie's soft cheek, said the rose; said the violet, 'neath her bright eye. In her hand, said the lily, whose pressure an Angel would tempt from the sky.

Some sought a place on her breast, others a home in her hair,
All sought the dew of her lips, themselves to make fragrant and fair.

The meeting adjourned. Choose a favorite,
Mattie, they said, ere we part.

Then, modestly blushing, a Sweet William she clasped to her heart.

seeking. As I left for Washington a few days since, the guinea-keets cried, "come back come back," and when I returned the frogs shouted, "Cooks Will's come, Cooks Will's come." I was lonesome all the time I was away for, as I walked about. there was no Joe Smith's hound pur to bark a welcome to me, no Emma Sa voy's half game chickens to crow, "Hail to the chieftain." I missed the empty shiny tin sardine cans that the company mends their pike with near our postoffice, and I didn't see in Washington one colored idler around any of the stoves in the stores, keeping the heat from other folks, nor one chewing peanuts and piling hulls ipon the floor for people to stumble over. All was strange to me and I hastened to visiting her uncle, Mr. A. G. Mathews of this place. Mr. L. G. Mathews narrowly escaped serious injury on Saturday night last His horses became unmanageable and ran wildly down the Westminster road breaking the tongue of his dayton and parts of the harness. Mr. Mathews received cuts about the face.

Mrs. Emma Shepard, one of Glenwood's most esteemed ladles, is visiting friends in Philadelphia. Mary Louise Duvall, three-year-old daughter of Mr. J. O. Duvall, underwent an operation on last Wednesday for the removal of a grain of corn which had become lodged in her nose in a very peculiar manner.

Mrs. Dr. Warfield expects, soon to visit her home in Virginia. I wish to say that I was misquoted ast week in a part of my letter. Perhaps it was unnoticed, yet I wish to set myself right before the world. The roublesome part is this: "I think I have aken up enough burdens for our Lisbon riends. To be sure I was asked personaly to do so."

Now, that should have been: "To be ture I was not asked," etc. I make this explanation simply to establish my inegrity in the minds of Hobson and lane Foster. As our Editor has concluded to shut down on the different parodies written on Mr. Kipling's celebrated "White Man's Burden," he will doubtless be averse to printing parodies on Mr. Kipling's name. R. I. P. FLORENCE, April 19.—Do you know that THE TIMES is an up-to-date paper Last week it was alive and brimming over with news and good humor, and if the correspondence continues to flow, the editor will need a rest and a tonic to prepare himself for the "writings" that are

P." thinks it time some good work is being done in the Although we miss Tim Trickett from Florence, we read with increasing interest the articles by his intimate friend, "Cooks Will." But we do not agree with him that "P. I. P." can fill Tim's place. That would be impossible, as his articles are always so spicy. "Cooks Will," do your best, for we all want to see Mr. Trickett in the Senate, and heartily indorse his political opinions in regard to Mr. Gorman and Mr. Edwin Warfield.

Where could be found better men? Now that the season of gaveties has opened along the Patuxent, "R. I. P." will be kept very busy attending to his social duties. Who has not undergone the sufferings of sympathy over the barbaric treatment of the disciples of Christianity? Who has not deplored the paganism of Nero and his court? The Bible of martyr dom is graphic. It is frightfully thrilling, but it needs the portraiture of such iving pictures of Christian fortitude as is exemplified in "The Sign of the Cross" ing the announcement that "Sunday to suitably convey to our minds the terrible ordeals of those days when it meant death by wild beasts and tortured on the rack, to espouse the cause of Christ.
